6

LATEST NEWS >

02:40 PM: Manned mission to Mars may include a detour to Moon 02:39 PM: UK softens demands on senior bankers, widens scope of... 02:37 PM: Kerala Assembly N Sakthan Speaker courts controversy

If companies don't innovate, they cease to exist

Small Biz

You are here: ET Home > Small Biz > Startups

Startups

Entrepreneurship

SME Sector

Policy & Trends Marketing-Branding

Legal Money

Search for News, Stock Quotes & NAV's

03:02 PM | 15 OCT LIVE MARKET STATS ▼

 SENSEX
 NIFTY
 GOLD (MCX) (Rs/10g.)

 27,020.24 ▲ 240.58
 8,183.40 ▲ 75.50
 27,233.00 ▲ 27.00

64.78 ▼ -0.26

CREATE PORTFOLIO

Phone 6 (S) Buy Now Learn More

Like Share 3,358,573 people like this.

SPOTLIGHT

ET Startup Awards

PM Modi to put more fire in the belly of startups

The ambitious bid to take India to global entrepreneurship's high table is likely to be backed by tax breaks, incubation centres and easier approvals.

- Cut down on valuation expectations, Nikesh Arora tells startups
- Easy discounts not the path to growth, feel unicorn startups

Indian startup develops cloud-based app developing platform

By IANS | 3 Oct, 2015, 02.30PM IST

Post a Comment

READ MORE ON » Pulp Strategy | Mobile app | IOS | Instappy | android

4BHK Flat, Sec-79 Gurgaon indiahomes.com/MountVille-Gurgaon - 4

BHK Flats at Mapsko Mount Ville. "Pay 40% Now & Rest 60% Later".

NEW DELHI: Delhi-based startup firm Pulp Strategy has launched a new Instappy cloud-based mobile app creation platform for iOS and Android.

The company, which is targeting its products at small and medium businesses. claims that the new platform will enable users to build intuitive, native apps in less than 60 minutes.

Pulp Strategy has launched a new Instappy cloud-based mobile app creation platform for iOS and Android

ET SPECIAL: Love visual aspect of news? Enjoy this exclusive slideshows treat!

"Instappy will open up the mobile commerce market for businesses without them having to worry about being able to "speak tech", unaffordable costs, hidden maintenance or months of waiting before going to launch," Ambika Sharma, managing director, Pulp Strategy, said.

"Instappy also has a strong online mentoring program where we will help guide businesses to make the most of their app ensuring that going mobile is not a cost head but a revenue center faster in the lifecycle," she added.

According to the company, the platform is loaded with features that until now, were almost always exclusively available only with full-scale development effort.

"It equips users with a set of intuitive tools, a host of easy to integrate API's, inventory management for retail apps and fully supported data integration," it said.

Instappy will follow a subscription-based model and also has customised plans for enterprises, which may need unique integrations in their apps.

Stay on top of business news with The Economic Times App. Download it Now!

Recommend 68 people recommend this.

FROM AROUND THE WEB